Survey of pharmacy students to assess Right dispensing of medicines

B.Pharm students at RBVRR Women's College of Pharmacy conducted a comprehensive survey that not only assessed the correct dispensing of medicines but also touched upon broader aspects such as professional ethics, community outreach, and lifelong learning activities. This holistic approach is commendable as it reflects a deeper understanding of the multifaceted responsibilities of pharmacists beyond just technical skills.

Professional Ethics: Evaluating professional ethics likely involved assessing students' understanding of ethical principles in pharmacy practice, such as patient confidentiality, integrity in dispensing medications, and adherence to legal and regulatory standards. Ensuring that future pharmacists have a strong ethical foundation is crucial for maintaining trust and integrity within the profession.

Community Outreach: Community outreach activities would involve initiatives where students engage with the local community to provide education on medication use, health promotion, and disease prevention. By participating in such activities, students not only contribute to the well-being of the community but also develop important communication and interpersonal skills necessary for effective patient care.

Lifelong Learning: Assessing lifelong learning activities likely involved determining students' engagement in activities beyond the classroom that contribute to their professional development. This could include participation in continuing education programs, involvement in research projects, or membership in professional organizations. Encouraging lifelong learning ensures that pharmacists stay updated with the latest advancements in the field and continue to deliver high-quality care throughout their careers.

By incorporating these elements into their survey, the B.Pharm students at RBVRR Women's College of Pharmacy demonstrate a commitment to preparing well-rounded pharmacists who not only excel in technical competencies but also uphold ethical standards, actively engage with their communities, and embrace a culture of lifelong learning.

Report

RBVRR Women's College of Pharmacy organized a spirited rally to commemorate World Pharmacist Day in 2019, with enthusiastic involvement from students pursuing both Bachelor of Pharmacy (B.Pharm) and Doctor of Pharmacy (Pharm.D) degrees. The overarching theme of the event, "Safe and effective medicines for all," was carefully chosen to emphasize the indispensable role pharmacists play in ensuring the safety and efficacy of medication usage among all individuals.

This theme resonates deeply with the core principles of pharmacy practice, as it underscores the pharmacist's responsibility to uphold patient safety by optimizing medication regimens and mitigating the risk of errors. Through the rally, students sought to raise awareness about the critical contributions of pharmacists in healthcare settings and their tireless efforts to enhance medication management processes.

The participation of both B.Pharm and Pharm.D students symbolizes their shared commitment to advancing the pharmacy profession and advocating for the well-being of patients. By actively engaging in the rally, students not only demonstrated their dedication to promoting health literacy and medication safety but also showcased their solidarity in championing the vital role of pharmacists within the broader healthcare landscape.

Overall, the rally served as a poignant reminder of the significance of pharmacists in safeguarding public health and ensuring equitable access to safe and effective medicines for all members of society. It provided a platform for students to amplify their voices, foster community engagement, and inspire positive change in medication management practices.

REPORT :-

The 58th National Pharmacy Week (NPW) 2019 was a collaborative effort between RBVRR Women's College of Pharmacy and the Indian Pharmaceutical Association (IPA), Telangana branch, held from November 17th to 22nd, 2019. The inauguration ceremony commenced with the lighting of the lamp by esteemed guests, including Dr. A Rama Krishna from the Dept. Drug Control General CDSCO Zonal Office Kolkata, and Dr. A Kalyana Chakravarty, Associate Vice-President at PSAI Dr. Reddy's Laboratories. The Honorary Secretary and Principal of the college were also present for the event.

Prof. M. Sumakanth, the Principal, addressed the audience, outlining the agenda and activities planned for the week. The event witnessed participation from various colleges offering B.Pharm, M.Pharm, and PharmD courses in and around Hyderabad.

As part of the NPW, a series of competitions were organized to engage the participating students. These competitions aimed to foster a spirit of healthy competition while enhancing the students' knowledge and skills in the field of pharmacy. Through these initiatives, the college sought to inspire and empower

RBVRR Women's College of Pharmacy celebrated National Girl Child Day with a focus on empowering girls and highlighting their significance in society. The theme for the year 2020, "My Voice, Our Common Future," emphasized the collective responsibility to ensure that girls' voices are heard and their rights are advocated for. This theme recognized the pivotal role that girls play in shaping our shared future and underscored the importance of amplifying their voices.

By commemorating National Girl Child Day with such a theme, RBVRR Women's College of Pharmacy demonstrated its commitment to promoting gender equality and empowering girls to become active participants in building a brighter and more inclusive future for all.

REPORT:-

RBVRR Women's College of Pharmacy organized a free medical camp in collaboration with Prathima Hospitals, held within the college premises on March 4, 2020. The medical camp aimed to provide essential health services to both teaching and non-teaching members associated with the college, benefiting them with various medical examinations.

Medical examinations such as blood pressure (BP) checks, blood glucose examinations, and body mass index (BMI) assessments were conducted during the camp. These screenings were crucial for assessing and monitoring participants' health status, helping to identify any potential health concerns or risk factors.

The extension activity had a significant impact on society by promoting social well-being and raising health awareness among the college community and beyond. By offering these medical services free of charge, the camp addressed healthcare accessibility issues and ensured that individuals, regardless of their socio-economic status, could receive necessary health screenings.

Additionally, college students actively participated as volunteers, contributing their time and efforts to support the smooth functioning of the medical camp. Their involvement not only enhanced the efficiency of the event but also provided them with valuable hands-on experience in community service and healthcare outreach.

Overall, the medical camp organized by RBVRR Women's College of Pharmacy and Prathima Hospitals exemplified the college's commitment to serving the broader societal needs and promoting the well-being of its members and the surrounding community.

REPORT:-

RBVRR Pharm.D I and II Year students took an active role in producing a COVID Awareness video, aligning it with their participation in World Diabetes Day organized by the college. While the primary focus of the initiative was to shed light on diabetes-related matters such as treatment, prevention, and symptoms, the students also recognized the importance of addressing the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic. By incorporating information about COVID-19, including its management and preventive measures, they ensured a holistic approach to public health education.

Their decision to share the video on YouTube was strategic, as it allowed them to transcend geographical barriers and reach a wider audience. This digital dissemination reflects their adaptability and forward-thinking mindset, especially crucial in a time when physical gatherings are limited due to the pandemic. By harnessing the power of online platforms, they effectively extended the scope of their initiative, maximizing its impact on society.
