Report on "Hepatitis Awareness" on 25/06/2022

RBVRR Women's College of Pharmacy organized an extension activity aimed at raising awareness about Hepatitis near Nimboli Adda, Kachiguda, on June 25, 2022. The event saw enthusiastic participation from students across all courses, who collaborated closely with the local community to make a significant impact on societal health.

Through a series of informative workshops, interactive sessions, and community engagement initiatives, the program sought to deepen public understanding of Hepatitis, covering its causes, symptoms, prevention, and available treatments. Students actively worked alongside community members, fostering a spirit of collaboration and leveraging local insights to effectively disseminate information.

The initiative's impact extended beyond mere awareness-raising, contributing to tangible improvements in public health outcomes. By empowering individuals with accurate information and promoting preventive measures, RBVRR Women's College of Pharmacy played a pivotal role in combating Hepatitis within the community.

The active participation of students from diverse academic backgrounds underscored the interdisciplinary approach to addressing health challenges, enriching the program with varied perspectives and expertise. Moreover, the collaborative efforts between the college and the community highlighted the significance of collective action in driving positive societal change.

In summary, this Hepatitis awareness program organized by RBVRR Women's College of Pharmacy exemplified the institution's commitment to promoting health equity and community well-being through collaborative endeavors.

Report on Tree plantation on 19/04/2022

RBVRR College organized a tree planting initiative on April 19, 2022, as part of their National Service Scheme (NSS) activities. This effort went beyond mere event planning; it aimed to cultivate a culture of sustainability and environmental responsibility among students and faculty.

The program involved active participation from students of B.pharm II Year, who were involved in selecting appropriate tree species, preparing the soil, and planting the saplings with care. Additionally, the event served as a platform for educating participants about the vital role trees play in mitigating climate change and preserving biodiversity.

Moreover, the impact of the tree planting initiative extended beyond the college campus. By beautifying the surroundings and creating green spaces, it not only enhanced aesthetics but also provided tangible benefits like improved air quality and habitat for local wildlife.

Furthermore, the event fostered a sense of pride and ownership among participants as they witnessed their efforts flourish over time. It underscored the power of collective action in effecting positive change.

In summary, the tree planting initiative organized by RBVRR College on April 19, 2022, exemplified their dedication to environmental stewardship and community engagement, leaving a lasting imprint on both the college premises and the broader community.

Report:-

On April 7, 2022, RBVRR Women's College of Pharmacy (RBVRR WCP) conducted a "Liver Protection Awareness Programme" in collaboration with Prathima Hospitals, benefiting around 50 community members residing near Barkatpura, Narayanaguda, and Kachiguda areas. This extension activity aimed to educate participants, including students, faculty members, and non-teaching staff, about maintaining liver health through lifestyle choices, diet, and regular screenings.

The program, facilitated by experts from Prathima Hospitals, emphasized the significance of liver health and the prevention of liver-related diseases. Through this initiative, RBVRRWCP demonstrated its commitment to serving society beyond campus boundaries, while the collaboration with Prathima Hospitals enhanced the program's effectiveness, ensuring accurate and impactful information delivery. Overall, the "Liver Protection Awareness Programme" proved to be a valuable service utilized by approximately 50 individuals, benefiting both the college community and the surrounding society.

REPORT ON COVID -19 VACCINE AWARENESS on 16/03/2022

RBVRR Women's College of Pharmacy initiated a proactive COVID vaccine awareness campaign, with students taking on pivotal roles in disseminating crucial information. This effort extended beyond the college grounds, reaching out to the neighboring communities of Barkatpura and Kachiguda.

The students adopted a grassroots approach, distributing informative pamphlets designed to educate local residents about COVID-19 vaccines. These materials not only highlighted the effectiveness and importance of the vaccines but also addressed prevalent misconceptions and concerns regarding potential side effects.

Rather than merely distributing the pamphlets, students actively engaged with community members, initiating conversations, and providing clarity on any misunderstandings or anxieties. By serving as knowledgeable messengers, they played a vital part in bridging the gap between vaccine information and public understanding.

Through these interactions, students not only shared factual information but also fostered trust and confidence in the vaccines. By dispelling myths and tackling concerns directly, they helped to alleviate fears and uncertainties, ultimately contributing to an environment conducive to vaccine acceptance.

Moreover, this initiative had broader implications for public health awareness in the surrounding regions. By actively engaging with the community and promoting informed decision-making regarding vaccination, the students helped to cultivate a culture of health consciousness and accountability.

REPORT:-

National Science Day celebrations organized by RBVRR Women's College of Pharmacy on February 28th, 2022, exemplify a lifelong learning activity. By hosting a virtual science fair centered around the theme of "Idea Generation in Sustainability of Nature," the college provided both high school and college students with an opportunity to engage in hands-on learning and exploration.

Participating students had the chance to research, innovate, and create models that addressed important issues related to environmental sustainability. This process not only expanded their knowledge and understanding of scientific concepts but also fostered critical thinking, problem-solving skills, and creativity.

Furthermore, the collaborative nature of the event, which involved students from various schools, encouraged peer learning, exchange of ideas, and networking opportunities. By showcasing their models and participating in the competition, students were actively involved in their own educational journey, taking ownership of their learning experiences.

The recognition and awards given to the winners in the form of e-certificates and prizes served as incentives for their efforts and achievements, motivating them to continue their pursuit of knowledge and excellence.

Overall, the National Science Day celebrations organized by RBVRR Women's College of Pharmacy not only celebrated scientific inquiry and innovation but also embodied the spirit of lifelong learning, inspiring students to embrace curiosity, exploration, and continuous growth.

REPORT:-

The Pharmacology Department at RBVRR WCP went all out to mark World Cancer Day on February 4th, 2022, by organizing a diverse array of virtual events. These events were meticulously designed to engage participants in meaningful discussions and activities aimed at spreading awareness about cancer.

Firstly, there was the Fitness Challenge, which likely encouraged participants to adopt healthy lifestyle choices known to reduce cancer risk, such as regular exercise and balanced nutrition. The Illustration Competition, on the other hand, provided a creative outlet for individuals to express their thoughts and feelings about cancer through art, potentially sparking important conversations and reflections.

Additionally, the online webinar session served as a platform for experts to share valuable insights into cancer prevention and treatment, further enriching participants' understanding of the disease and empowering them with knowledge to take action.

Throughout these events, participants actively participated in discussions on various aspects of cancer, from risk factors to treatment options, contributing to a collaborative effort to raise awareness and combat the disease.

By awarding e-certificates to the winners, the department not only recognized their individual efforts and achievements but also incentivized continued engagement and participation in future initiatives.

Overall, the Pharmacology Department's dedication to leveraging online platforms to advance cancer awareness and encourage active participation in the fight against cancer is truly commendable.

REPORT:-

RBVRR Women's College of Pharmacy commemorated the 60th National Pharmacy Week (NPW) from November 21st to November 26th, 2021. The theme for this year's celebrations was "Pharmacist: An Integral Part of Healthcare." Various activities were organized during this period to highlight the role of pharmacists in healthcare.

On November 22nd, 2021, an elocution competition was held where participants spoke on the theme of the event. Following that, on November 23rd, 2021, an essay writing competition took place focusing on the topic: "Educate Before You Medicate - Knowledge is the Best Medicine - Talk With Your Pharmacist." Additionally, a quiz competition was conducted on November 24th, 2021.

Participants showcased their knowledge and skills in these competitions, demonstrating their understanding of the critical role pharmacists play in healthcare delivery. The winners of these competitions were recognized for their achievements and awarded prizes along with certificates, acknowledging their contributions to the celebration of National Pharmacy Week.

REPORT:-

RBVRR Women's College of Pharmacy adapted to the challenges posed by the COVID-19 pandemic by organizing a plantation programme by teaching and non teaching faculty in campus premises and also organizing virtual events for students in celebration of World Nature Conservation Day on July 28th. The primary objective of observing this day is to unite individuals in advocating for and supporting nature conservation, with a particular focus on raising awareness among communities.

Given the pressing issues like global warming, the prevalence of various diseases, natural disasters, and rising temperatures, all of which stem from a natural imbalance, it is imperative to address these concerns for the well-being of current and future generations. Preserving nature is paramount, and it is crucial to educate people worldwide about the importance of conserving resources, recycling materials, preserving natural habitats, and understanding the consequences of environmental damage.

As part of the virtual event, RBVRR WCP organized a poster competition under the theme "Forests and livelihood: Sustaining People and Planet." This initiative provided students with a creative outlet to express the significance of forests in supporting both human livelihoods and the planet's ecosystems.

Furthermore, the college encouraged students to participate in a "Take a selfie" campaign, where they were prompted to capture themselves engaging in activities such as planting saplings, surrounded by greenery, or caring for existing trees. This campaign aimed to raise public awareness about the importance of conservation efforts and inspire collective action in preserving nature.

The images and videos generated during these activities were shared across social media platforms to amplify the message of nature conservation to a wider audience. Additionally, winners of the poster competition were acknowledged and awarded for their contributions to promoting environmental awareness and conservation efforts.

Through these virtual events, RBVRR Women's College of Pharmacy demonstrated its commitment to overcoming barriers imposed by the COVID-19 pandemic while continuing to advocate for environmental stewardship and sustainability. By engaging in such initiatives, the college plays a pivotal role in fostering a culture of environmental responsibility and encouraging collective action for the preservation of our natural world.
